Dear Magalie R. Salas,

FEDERAL ENERGY
REGULATORY COMMISSION

I am writing as a resident of Nassau County, NY opposing the construction of Broadwater off the coast of Long Island. There are several reasons for my opposition, one the environmental impact to surrounding waters. Secondly, the added cost to taxpayers. It is already becoming too costly to live on Long Island, the added expense of security of this facility will cause more young families to leave Long Island because of the extra tax burden. Lastly, the safety issue, the location of this facility, and its potential of being a target for destruction. Long Island is not equipped to provide safe, timely egress from the island in the event of security breach or destruction.

Sincerely,

Colleen Kearney
