To Margalie R. Salis

As a concerned citizen of Long Island it has come to my attention that Shell Oil and TransCanada proposed their floating offshore LNG barge in 2004. After reading all the information provided to me , I have great concerns that it is too costly, and risky. I also have great concerns about the constant armed guard that would be necessary to protect such a business. The sounds and sight and the wildlife which is becoming ever increasingly less and less on Long Island is another concern of mine. This island has lost to much of its natural land beauty that the thought of the loss of any aquatic and land and water fowl is unbearable. With the ever increasing reduction of land there are no places left except perhaps the shores for the citizens of Long Island to enjoy. I have lived on this Island for many years and the changes to it has become disturbing . I would be grateful if you consider any future generations, please think wisely consider the beauty and life on the Island.

thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
