DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY
REGULATORY COMMISSION

Broadwater should not be built -- not in Long Island Sound. I can look across the sound and see Connecticut, and I think of the times in our history since before we even became a nation when access to the mainland was important. George Washington traveled about on Long Island thanking certain people for their war efforts, action that was facilitated by the ability to cross the Sound to avoid the enemy.

We now have commercial ferries to take us to Connecticut and elsewhere in New England.

Broadwater would destroy the beauty of the sound and its access to food and to New England.

Sincerely,

Alice Clark
