Subject: Broadwater SIC code

Frank: Sorry to not reply to you sooner on your question from last Thursday about the SIC code. Although Broadwater has not settled on a SIC code, SIC 4491 (Marine Cargo Handling) appears to be the most practical, reasonable and relevant code. Other LNG projects in various stages of development also show use of this code. We have seen that LNG projects in the Gulf Region (EPA Region 6) have been classified under SIC code 4491. EPA Region 6 consistently has applied the 250 TPY threshold when determining if LNG receiving/regasification terminals are subject to PSD permitting requirements. In doing so, EPA Region 6 has relied on a memorandum issued by EPA Headquarters on July 31, 2003 that concludes that LNG terminals classified under SIC code 4491 are not within the "fuel conversion" source category subject to the 100 TPY PSD applicability threshold.

Also attached is a copy of the July 31, 2003 memorandum.

Take care,
