Dear Ms. Salas,
I have recently become aware of the plan for the LGN facility to be built in the Long Island Sound. This is a scary proposition, not only because of the potential harm it may cause to the surrounding ecosystem and environment, but because it displays, in sharp focus, our dependency on non-renewable fuel sources. Today, our attention should be on new technologies, which are no longer science fiction, and have show significant promise in their application to renewable fuel or alternative fuels. Please consider my opposition seriously and block the commercialization of our waters and promote the advancement of our society and world.

Thank you,
Michael Berlin
